ABOUT

Working with a range of clients and employment fields, from medical to construction, since joining Brown & Carlson as an Associate Attorney in 2022, Eric handles all aspects of workers' compensation claims. Flexible and collaborative, he brings thoughtful thoroughness to every stage of the process, reflected in the quality of his work.

Respect for the importance of workers' compensation has been a grounding point for the growth of his practice and he derives value from being part of a larger process that protects both workers and employers. Outside of his practice, he shares his knowledge with others, leading numerous webinars on topics including averaging weekly wage calculations and rehabilitation benefits.

Away from the office, Eric spends time with his family and pets, and is a team player through and through, both as a proud member of the Brown & Carlson softball team and as an avid fan of our Minnesota sports teams.
