ABOUT

With nearly equal experience representing injured employees as well as advocating for employers and insurers, Eric brings a well-rounded, 20-year perspective to every case. This unique background gives him a comprehensive understanding of the claims process from both sides of the table. Today, he leverages that insight to represent employers, insurers, self-insured employers, and third-party administrators, often working with the food distribution industry. Proactive and efficient, Eric works closely with colleagues to keep cases moving forward and consistently maintains a responsive, attentive approach to client needs.

Away from the office, Eric values time with his wife and their teenage son and daughter. He's a regular on the sidelines at soccer games and track meets, and volunteers as a board member for a non-profit youth soccer club.
